CIRCUS PLEASES AND DRAWS THOUSANDS TO SEE SIGHTS

The Barton-Bailey circus arrived in the city early this morning bringing with it the usual excitement for the children of all sizes and ages. Within a short time, the tents and other paraphernalia were transferred from the railroad yards to the circus grounds at Twenty-seventh street and Washington avenue, and formed the center of attraction for hundreds of people throughout the day.

The parade was staged between 10 and 11 a. m., passing through the business district of the city and was watched with interest by large crowds that filled the streets all along its course. Its return to the big tents was the signal for the opening of the main side show and other smaller attractions and these were well patronized until the opening of the "Big show," at 2 o'clock. The new boys of the city were guests of Manager Thomas Wiedemann at this performance and enjoyed the treat to the utmost extent.

While the usual circus managerie was not much in evidence under the "big top" of the Barton and Bailey circus, the horses, snakes and elephants came in for considerable attention and the entertainment attended by the large crowd of patrons this afternoon was evidence that the management had put forth the biggest part of its efforts toward giving a program of ring and platform acts that is well worth seeing.

The principal riding act, that of the Correll family, ladies, proved to be one of most interest and merit. Another excellent riding act presented was that of the Hollis family, late of the Ringling, Barnum and Bailey and Campbell circuses. The three Wolfgrims, German acrobats, present an act of startling strength and skill and their efforts were loudly applauded.

The "Wright Two" present a novelty ladder act that is somewhat out of the ordinary and Ralph Dick and Mrs. Fisher perform some stunts on the slack wire that were watched with close attention and well received. Mrs. Fisher is known as the "iron-jawed" woman and has a good right to the sobriquet.

Two good aerial acts are performed by Mankin and Burkhead, contortionists, and the Wagners, who do their work on a swinging ladder and other novel traps.

The most sensational "stunt" of the show is that performed by Sandos Bandiera, the strong man who, among other things, permits an automobile to be driven across his body.

A group of five Balkan dancers, singers and musicians, all men, create much interest, their dances being of a particularly fast and amazing nature. There are several other good acts on the program and, with the work of Brewer and Bowers, Snodgrass brothers, Mrs. Armstrong, Mrs. Irvin, Frank Leroy and George Weyman, a group of clever clowns, the performance is kept lively from start to finish. The second performance will be given tonight, beginning at 8 o'clock.

Force of Detectives. Although today is circus day and the grounds at Washington avenue and Twenty-seventh street white with the canvas of Barton & Bailey's big show, special precautions have been taken or warnings issued by the police relative to the proverbial influx of thieves and pickpockets who in years past have made it a practice to follow the big tent shows around the country, reaping a rich harvest from the crowds of visitors and from the homes made vacant by families who attend the shows.

From the day they started in the circus business Barton & Bailey have waged a persistent and relentless war against those unwelcome followers and although it was difficult and uphill work to eliminate this undesirable element from the circus, the efforts of the famous showmen have been gradually crowned with success. During the past circus season not a single complaint has been registered by victims of pickpockets and other thieves in the various towns which the Barton & Bailey shows have visited.

This remarkable record is largely due to the fact that Barton & Bailey carry one of the most skilled secret service departments in the country. It is composed of men under the direction of Chief Jim Donahue and Eddie Biscombe, an experienced detective known all over the country for his remarkable "camera eye" and his ability never to forget the face of a crook. The men are thoroughly experienced in this line of work, most of them having been recruited, either from the government service or from the detective departments in the large cities.

Chief Donahue and his men mingle with the crowds constantly, from the time the show arrives and unloads, early in the morning, until the last train section is ready to depart at night. Some mingle with the throngs in the downtown streets while the parade is passing, and three men are constantly on duty at the show grounds, both inside and outside of the tents.

Of course, this staff of circus detectives works in closest co-operation with the local police departments and the moment a suspected pickpocket or second-story worker is spotted, he is immediately taken into custody and turned over to the city officers to be locked up on suspicion.

All the animals of Barton & Bailey's circus are reared and trained with kindness and gentle persuasion and as a result the horses, elephants, camels and menagerie animals are the most perfectly behaved and best specimens of their kind ever carried by a circus. Accidents and stampedes caused by the animals are a very rare exception.

In fact, Barton & Bailey inaugurated a new epoch in the circus world from a moral standpoint. Their employees and performers are people of refinement and culture and in all departments the big show, from the dressing rooms to the stables, there prevails an atmosphere of moral and wholesome cleanliness.

A large audience this afternoon witnessed the exemplification of the passing of the old-time circus. The careless, rough-and-tumble exhibition of wit, skill and muscular rapidity was replaced by the circus of the past, and it has been supplanted by the scientific circus, whose provision and daring only enhance its novelty and its thrills.

WORLD'S MARKETS

New York, May 21.—A steady tone prevailed in today's early stock market.

Issues of all classes showing gains. These extended to a full point in the case of some so-called war specialties. United States Steel, Coppers and Mexican Petroleum joined in the rise and representative railway stocks rose substantially after temporary hesitation. Chesapeake and Ohio and Missouri Pacific, features of yesterday's session, rose from material fractions to a point. Dealings were on a moderate scale, indications pointing to a dull day.

Chicago Grain

Chicago, May 21.—Bullish crop reports from Illinois today gave the wheat market here an upward swing. A leading expert sent word that a large acreage in the southeastern section of the state was worthless and that in other fields the damage had been greater than seemed probable. Some buying for an export house caused the May option to lead the advance. Opening prices which varied from 1-4 off to 1-2c advance, were followed by gains all around, and then a moderate reaction.

Corn rallied owing to the bulge in wheat. Lower cable quotations led to a little weakness at first. After opening 1-8@1-4 to 3-8@1-2c down, the market ascended above last night's level.

Oats traders took their cue from the action of wheat. Business, however, was not large.

Higher prices for hogs tended to lift provisions. Offerings on the hard spots, though, were quite free.

Reports that suggested 64,000,000 bushels less wheat in Kansas and Oklahoma than was harvested for 1914 caused a second swell in prices. There were also advices that millers were competing for the unsold wheat at Duluth. The market closed strong at 1 1/8 to 1 7/8c net advance. Need of dry warm weather was an element later in a decided upturn in corn. The close was firm at 3-8@1-2c to 1c above last night.

KRONPRINZ TAKES ON BEER AND NOW THE BERI-BERI IS GONE

Beer for beri-beri

When the German converted cruiser, the Kronprinz Wilhelm, darted between the lines of the Allied warships guarding Newport News last month and dropped anchor, more than 100 members of the crew were seriously ill with beri-beri, the dread disease of the sea. Today, not a case of beri-beri remains.

When the United States officials first boarded the vessel, not a drop of beer was aboard. The first order was the payment of the Kronprinz gave on coming ashore was for a consignment of beer. Fifty barrels, equivalent to 6,000 bottles, have since been hoisted up the vessel's sides.

Q. E. D.

The arrival here of the two German sea-raiders, the Prinz Eitel

Friedrich and the Kronprinz Wilhelm, has brought out vividly the strange contrast between the German navy, on a war footing, and the United States navy, now operating under Secretary Daniels' no-alcoholic-beverages-aboard order. The first orders given by the commanders of the two German vessels were for consignments of beer, and the last of "provisions" taken aboard the Prinz Eitel, before she interned, was beer.

According to officers of the Kronprinz Wilhelm, which scoured the oceans and seas of the world for seven months, the supply of beer on the vessel became exhausted some weeks ago. Ship after ship was overhauled, searched and sent to the bottom, but no beer was found until the French steamer, Gaudiloupe, was sighted. Forty quarters of beer were in her hold. Again the supply of beer ran low. None was found until the cruiser reached here. On the hurricane deck of the Kronprinz is fitted a "palm garden," with perquisites taken from a French passenger steamer. When duty does not call, the officers sit in steamer chairs and sip their foaming glasses. At intervals during the day and evening, the sailors gather in groups around the decks, playing games and quietly drinking their beer, as though sitting in a cafe. In times of peace, they say, a vessel of the German navy is never without a supply of beer; in war times, it is "dry" only when emergency prevents the procuring of a fresh supply. With the midday meal of the German sailor is served a measure of light wine. At any hour of the day, between dawn and dark, he can get his measure of beer. He does not buy beer ashore and take it aboard, the government does it for him.

The two men entered pleas of guilty and the woman one of not guilty and the cases were continued until tomorrow. The trio were arrested Wednesday evening, in a house on Wall avenue, between Twenty-sixth and Twenty-seventh streets, known as the "Old Ark," and the officers, Detectives Burk and Chambers, confiscated a complete opium smoking outfit, which was still hot when they entered the room where the three defendants were found.

CITY JAIL CROWDED WITH 'MOOCHERS' AND TRAMPS

Owing to the great number of prisoners in the city jail at the present time, it was found necessary this morning to divide them into two gangs with Robert Paine and Jerome Brown as guards. Each game numbered ten men and, in addition, nine men and five women were left in the bastle. The conditions with regard to unemployed men and professional "moochers" and tramps in the city is said to be worse now than it was in the winter and the department of public safety has arranged to get a lot of work done in the city cemetery by the latter class so long as they remain here and fall to keep strictly within the law.
